Our Choir

As a non-auditioned choir, the Orpheus encourages people of differing musical backgrounds and levels of musical skill to meet in order to perform classical choral music. We have sung works ranging from the Renaissance to the late twentieth century. We give three major concerts each year, performing in Hexham's Abbey and High Schools, as well as churches throughout the region. In addition, Christmas carol singing (sometimes in a formal concert, but also al fresco) is a standard activity. We also have sung for various local charities and are available for private functions. New members will find a warm, friendly group with a busy social calendar.

OUR NEXT PERFORMANCE

MASTERWORKS FROM THE TWENTIETH CENTURY

Saturday, 5th April, 2014 in St Andrew's Church, Corbridge

We shall be singing John Rutter's 'Requiem', probably the most heartfelt of all his many works for choirs, together with Leonard Bernstein's exhilarating 'Chichester Psalms', and a short group of 'Ave Maria' settings by Rachmaninov, Holst, and Arvo Pärt.

Welcome Yule!

The words for your Christmas hymns are on a separate sheet

CEREMONY OF CAROLS:

Benjamin Britten, arr. Julius Harrison

1. Processional: Hodie Christus natus est
(before no.2 Jay Thacker will read 'The Shortest Day' by Susan Cooper)
2. Wolcum Yole!
3. There is no Rose
4. (a) That yongë Child
(b) Balulalow (solo: Pip Emler)
5. As dew in Aprille
6. This little babe
7. Interlude (Harp solo)
8. In Freezing Winter Night (solos: Judi Cornforth and Peter Vasey)
9. Spring Carol (duet: Carolyn Below and Val Mallinson)
10. Deo gratias
11. Recessional: Hodie Christus natus est

By 1942 the 29-year-old composer had been in self-imposed exile in the USA for three years. His homesickness and subsequent decision to return to England were sparked by discovering the poetry of the Suffolk-born George Crabbe, whose work inspired the opera Peter Grimes. Britten and Peter Pears secured a place on a small Swedish cargo boat. The month-long voyage in an airless, cramped cabin, crossing the Atlantic at the height of the campaign against German submarines, was the unlikely occasion for the composition of this carol collection. "One had to alleviate the boredom" was his only comment, though it seems to have lifted the depression that had made him think of giving up composition altogether. The texts are all medieval, and the decision to use only a harp as accompaniment followed a suggestion that he write a concerto for the instrument.

THREE MOTETS FOR THE SEASON OF CHRISTMAS:

Francis Poulenc

1. O Magnum Mysterium
2. Videntes stellam
3. Hodie Christus natus est

In his best-selling survey of twentieth-century music 'The Rest is Noise', Alex Ross comments on the paradox that the general decline in organised religion in the Western world "generated devotional masterpieces by the dozen". France was particularly prominent in this respect. In Poulenc's case, the religious reawakening was prompted by the loss of a friend in a horrific car accident in 1936 coinciding with the composer's visit to the shrine at Rocamadour. "Ruminating on the frailty of our human condition, I was once again attracted to the spiritual life," he wrote. Works like the Mass in G, the opera The Dialogue of the Carmelites, the famous Gloria and a set of Motets for Christmas followed over the next 20 or so years of his life. Written in 1952-53, tonight's pieces are in a style that would have seemed astonishingly conservative to the avant-garde of the time, but Poulenc's declared ambition in works like these was to create a simple "peasant devotion".

AUDIENCE AND CHOIR: God rest you merry, gentlemen

Janet Bennett

Janet studied harp and singing at The Royal Scottish Academy of Music, and has performed with many professional ensembles. Now enjoying a successful solo career, she gives recitals, plays for weddings and regularly appears on TV and radio. In 2006 she was appointed official harpist to the Lord Mayor of Newcastle upon Tyne, and has also performed to the Queen, Prince Charles, Juan Carlos of Spain and the Duke and Duchess of Northumberland. As well as her solo performances, Janet has a flute and harp duo and is a member of the popular and multi-talented Border Minstrels trio. She is a respected teacher and adjudicator, and has produced five books of her own arrangements and original compositions for harp. She gives regular workshops and is the main teacher of both pedal and Celtic harp in the Newcastle area.

Janet has released three solo CDs:

Clarsumbria is a collection of her favourite songs and music from Northumberland, accompanied by herself on the Celtic harp.

A Touch of Class contains a mixture of classical and popular music, including jazz, and a guest flautist.

Romantic Moments is Janet's most recent CD and again has a mixture of classical and popular music suitable for the many weddings and special occasions for which she is asked to play. Her website is www.janetbennett.co.uk
